Let Her Rip.

One sunny afternoons last week
I thought Fid take a ride,
And bried 8 neg they said was fast.
I'm sure she was when "tied."
My friend Bill Springion, drove the mare,
While I laid on the whip,
And shouted till I was quite borse—
"Billy, put that animated female projectile power through—pe lang—Let her rip!"

phatic tones, to

A chap who drove a large bay mag
Seemed anxious for a "brush,"
Se, whipping our own fast crab,
We went it with a rush;
"I was neck and oeck a mile or more,
When his mare made a trip;
We glided by like lightning greased—
For having hired the extraordinary snitual, we considered that we had a perfect right to get the worth of our money, and therefore—

Let her rip!

"Let her rip !"

We drave along without mishs;
At least a dozen miles,
Stepping new and then, of course,
To take a few more "smiles,"
At least we run into a chap
Who gave us too much lip;
The horse broke—the wagon too—pitching
Bill and myself into a ditch by the tusdeide.—
"Bill, "said!, "this mare hes runsway!" Bill, struggling under the combined efforts of lager
and a mouthful of mud, exclaimed—
"Let her rip!"
